River Dam to Go For Flood Control Program Here

Addison's flood control project has been taken over by United States Army Engineers and will be completed with Federal and State funds according to an announcement received by Mayor Angelo Sisto and Village Attorney Charles Salerno Tuesday.

The approved plan calls for several radical changes from those planned by Village and W. P. A. authorities. Chief items in the new planning are elimination of the dam at the old mill east of the Main Street bridge, straightening the curve from the B & O bridge to the rear of the Renken Dairy plant, straightening the L curve where the Tuscarora Creek empties into the Canisteo River and the building of the south dike wall of the Canisteo River west across Farnham Flats to Brooks Avenue.

The W. P. A. Engineers delayed several months on the dike walls for Addison, to the extent that village officials became anxious as to when the project was to be completed. There had been considerable criticism of village and W. P. A. over the non-completion of the project after funds had been allocated by the village for such work.

In April of this year Village Attorney Salerno conferred with the proper officials. However, at the same time a letter was sent by the U. S. Engineer's office in Binghamton to the district W. P. A. office asking W. P. A. Engineers to submit any plans to the Army Engineers for approval before undertaking any additional work.

It was deemed advisable at that time for a representative of the village to go to Binghamton to confer with army engineers. Attorney Salerno, Robert O. Hayt, who designed the dike here, Lynn Gibbs, superintendent of construction for the W. P. A. in Elmira, which included this area, went to Binghamton and conferred with Mayor G. J. Nold, district U. S. Army engineer.

The trio was informed that a Federal flood control project had been prepared for Addison as part of the Susquehanna watershed and that while the plans had not been approved, no work was to be done here unless submitted to the Army Engineers. At that time it was stated that it would probably be late summer or fall before Washington would approve the plans.

And, the group was also informed that if the W. P. A. and village of Addison wished to complete the project immediately, they would do so at their own cost, but under standards considered adequate by the Army Engineers. And if they waited for Army approval, the project would be paid for from Federal funds. In informal discussions it was brought out that the Army Engineers had a more elaborate flood control project in mind than was planned locally.

When Attorney Salerno made his report to the Village Board, several months ago, the Trustees decided to await Federal action.

The proposed plan as now accepted by Washington and approved by the New York State Department of Public Works is expected to become a reality soon and work will begin when funds are made available in Washington.

Any land needed to make possible this change in the courses of the Canisteo River and Tuscarora Creek will be acquired by the State of New York and the work done by the Federal government, not as W. P. A. or P. W. A. projects.

Some of the mechanics of the plan of general interest to people of the community are outlined here.

As was stated earlier in this account the elimination of the mill dam is the chif change with the building of the south levee or dike wall from the rear of the houses on Steuben Street to the head of Brooks Avenue on Steuben Street. The curve in the river there will be straightened by removing dirt from the northside of the river and moving the channel about 725 feet north of its prsent location at the curve The present wall will be left intact and used as the connecting link with the new wall to cut across the flats.

The reason for this change as given by the engineers, is that Brooks Avenue is the high point east of the railroad. Houses above Brooks Avenue on Steuben Street are in the low area and will not be protected. Under the old plan a dike was to be built along the east side of the B & O to Steuben Street and a concrete wall or dike on the north side of Steuben Street to the high point.

Then should water get into the village from the river or creek, a dike wall on the Vastbinder property in the rear of the school is to have a hole in it with a wooden dam which can be opened should the water fill the school grounds. This water will flow across made flats to the new and straightened channel of the Tuscarora Creek.

Plans of the proposed changes may be seen in the office of Village Attorney Charles Salerno or in the office of the Advertiser.

It is hoped to increase the members by 40 before the incorporation becomes final so that the fee may be free to the present membership.

Past President Attorney Hugh A. Varn will have charge of the incorporation and conduct the legal business for the club relative to the incorporation.

Gardner Bump, game head for the State Conservation Department wrote that due to tularemia or rabbit fever in the west, no rabbits are to be released during the coming year. The money for them will be edvoted to purchasing and releasing additional cock pheasants as was done this year.

Regular Eucharist Services In Redeemer Each Sun.

The ordination of the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch to the priesthood in the Episcopal Church means that Eucharist services will be held each week in the Church of the Redeemer here instead of bi-monthly as has been done in the past. The ordination gives the newly ordained priest the power of conferring all the externals of his church upon his parishioners instead of this being done by the Rev. Roger Alling of Corning as has been done for the past few months.

The order of services planned by the Rev. Russel Kirsch means tha Eucharist services will be held at 8:30 and 10:30 each Sunday and daily Masses will be held under his administration.

Coach Bill Miller has been putting his Knights basketeers through a gruelling pace during the past week in preparation for on of the biggest games on the local schedule for this season. Corning Northside comes here with a list veterans and a well coached and trick team. The lack of reserves is going to handicap the locals in this contest but the members of the squad have been practicing hard to offset their lack of aiding material. The game will be in the high school auditorium Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Model Ships Reveal Old and New in Sea Liners

The pioneering spirit of the early settlers of this country is typified in two models on display in the Crane Insurance office window. There is an old sailing vessel of the time of Columbus and the Plymouth settlers and besides it is a model of England's queen of the seas the S. S. "Queen Mary" of the Cunard Line.

The difference in the size is aptly illustrated and also the development in seamanship since that time may be noted from the models on display. Neil Smith is the builder of the sailing vessel and Jay Mose is the builder of the "Queen Mary".

One's imagination can picture the lives of the early sailors from looking at this model and observing the way the ship was operated as compared with the newer liners.

The tree will be lighted for the first time Saturday night. It is to be erected Friday of this week.

The club will also sponsor the community singing of Christmas carols and hymns. This will be done Saturday night, December 23, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Francis Hill is in charge of this part of the society program. All organizations and individuals in the village and vicinity are invited to take part in this singing.

Mrs. La Grange opened the program part of the meeting by giving a most interesting and delightful review of four current books dealing with rivers of the world. The books concerned the rivers Hudson, James Swanee and Nile, by four different authors. The first named is by Prof. Carl Carmer, who dramatized upstate New York in "Listen to a Lonesome Drum".

Mrs. Perry mentioned new books in the library and also gave a list of interesting books on present world conditions and another of famous books of all ages which are interesting to all members of all families.

Increased federal participation in old age assistance, effective January 1, will not affect the amount received by the needy in New York.

"The federal government now pays half the bill up to $30 and the state and local welfare districts pay 25 per cent each."

Weekday Religious Schools Approved For Addison

Voluntary religious education for children of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades of Addison school will begin Wednesday, January 3, 1940 it was decided at a meeting of school authorities and clergymen of the community held Monday morning in the office of Principal Irving R. Gladstone. Details of the plan are now being worked out by the five clergymen of Addison, all of whom attended Monday's meeting.

Those present were the Rev. John V. Axtell of the Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Patrick Kelly of St. Catherine's R. C. Church, the Rev. Mondula C. Johns of the Baptist Church, the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch of the Episcopal Church and the Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon of the Methodist Church. Meeting with them were Andrew W. Knebel and Robert Willson of the Board of Education and Principal Irving R. Gladstone of the school.

Letters will be sent to parents of all children in the grades mentioned asking their cooperation in the plan, which is purely voluntary. The letters read as follows:

"Plans are being made by all of the churches of Addison to give week-day religious instruction to the children whose parents express a desire for it.

"The children of grades 3 to 6 inclusive will be excused from the school the last period on Wednesday afternoon and will meet in the various churches.

"Return letters are herewith enclosed to the parents and those who sign these letters will be privileged to take advantage of this instruction for their children.

"This plan has been thoroughly tested in many towns in New York State and has proved very successful, both school and church authorities heartily endorsing it.

"Parents desiring further information may communicate with their pastor or the principal of the school.

I. R. Gladstone".

The letters will have attached a return note from the parents which will read as follows:

"To the Principal of Addison Public school:

"I hereby request that (name of pupil) be excused for one hour per week for the purpose of attending the Week-Day School of Religious Education in the (name of church).

"It is understood that the same discipline will exist as in the public school.

(Parent's Signature)"

Under the proposed plan, students having their parent's permission will be excused from school each Wednesday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock to attend religious education programs in their respective churches and under their own pastors. Classes will be held at 3 o'clock and continue for 45 minutes. This will enable commuting students to return to school in time to get their busses for their homes at 4 o'clock. Children in the village will be dismissed at the same time and go to their homes.

Attendance records will be kept the same as in school and school discipline will also be maintained.

The plan has been tried in many places and in some communities has been in operation for several years. Boards of Education, including the Addison Board recognize the need for the teaching of religion in the lives of the young people to prevent such catastrophes as now beset Europe and other parts of the world. They also recognize the need for the teaching of religion as being necessary for a complete and well-rounded education and hence the unanimous support given the plan here.

No child is to be given this training unless the parent desires it. And for this reason parents are urged to sign the letters which they will receive and have them returned to the school as soon as possible so that records may be made up for the clergy of each denomination and so that school records may be cleared before the opening of the session in January.

Senior Class Play Is Big Success

The senior class treasury was enriched in the sum of $120 last Friday evening by the successful presentation of the play "Green Stockings".

The three-act comedy was presented before a large and appreciative audience under the direction of Miss Thelma Albright, senior class sponsor.

The assignment of roles seemed particularly fortunate since all members of the cast gave excellent portrayals of their respective characters. In such a case it is difficult to choose one or two persons for special mention. Another factor contributing to the pleasure of the audience was the distinctness with which all participants spoke their lines.

The high school orchestra under the capable baton of Glenn L. Sprague was heard in three numbers, Talisman Overture by Brockton; Ol' Man River from Show Boat by Kern and Christmas Fantasy by Bergh.

YES, SHOP LATE, TOO

The Christmas season draws near and thousands of people are starting their annual tour of the stores, shopping for gifts for friends and relatives. Of course there is an occasional soul here and there who is so fore-handed their Christmas presents were all purchased and wrapped weeks ago. For every one of those, shall we say abnormal persons, there are thousands who delay their pilgrimage through the stores until the time of the real Christmas rush.

With all due respect for the many slogans urging folks to do their shopping early, there is still something to be said for the late worm who gets caught in the rush of the last couple of weeks before Christmas. At least he gets saturated with the real spirit of Christmas as he plunges about from store to store, working his way through crowds to get within touching distance of a counter. He may get his corns stepped on by some 200 pounder, but he also can catch a glimpse of happiness in the eyes of the little child gazing blissfully at the charming dolls. He may rack his brain for weeks trying to think of what to give Aunt Mariah and Cousin Hezakiah, but once he is lost in the milling crowd he can catch the Christmas spirit and the sight of others buying this and that often inspires the shopper with the ideas for which he has so futilely groped.

Yes, indeed, shopping early is unquestionably more sober and sensible, but joining the holiday rush does give one a "lift" he cannot possibly get picking out gifts in October or early November. Let all who will buy every last gift in a conservative, thoughtful manner and get every last present wrapped long before this great event. As for me, unless I get into at least one crowded store, unless I get jostled during one day of hurried shopping, the season is someway not complete. If every efficient, thoughtful person who always shops early would go into the stores on Christmas eve in search of one last little gift, that Christmas would be enriched by the experience of mixing with the many elements of society which make up this cross-section we call America. To catch the eagerness of the crowds, to see the light of happiness many put into every gift they buy is to really catch some of the spirit of Christmas which can be caught in no other way.

Yes, to shop early is to show good sense, to shop late is to catch additional happiness. So shop a little late as well as early.

COLLEGE STUDENTS MORE RELIGIOUS

Is there a tendency growing in the country today to return to the religion of our forefathers? Are we living to see fulfilled a prophecy made a few years ago that this depression would eventually reverse the marked drift of Americans into Godlessness?

One straw which might indicate such a possibility showed the other day in a census taken this fall among the entering students in a great university in this state. Asked to express their religious preference all except five per cent of the freshmen did so, the largest percentage to name their views during the last five years. Some 2,064 first year students thus went on record as either being affiliated with some religious denomination, or having thought of affiliating with it. To be true, not all the perferences were for forms of the Christian faith, there were disciples of Confucius and Buddha in the number. But the number of non-Christian religions given as preference was so small as to be practically negligible. Doubtless all were accounted for by students from distant countries.

It is true that one swallow does not make a summer. And it also may be true this isolated instance does not prove that young America is turning from sacriligious ways to follow the straight and narrow path prescribed by our Pilgrim ancestors. Yet it does prove more than 2,000 young people who entered that university this fall had given serious thought to matters of the soul as well as matters of the body. For all those who believe the basic ills of this world can be cured by application of the teachings of Christ, it is a most encouraging sign.

LIGHT OF FREEDOM

Those who used to forecast that if a war broke out in Europe sentiment in this country would swiftly grow martial, were apparently mistaken. All the evidence indicates that the great bulk of our citizens are grimly determined that this time we shall stay out—and that, irrespective of our sympathies, Europe's quarrels are not ours.

Certainly there is reason in this point of view. For if the war goes on for years to a bitter and exhausted end, all that is best in Europe will be submerged, perhaps for generations. It is here, in the Western hemisphere where there has been no major war for three-quarters of a century, that the fruits of civilization must be protected and nurtured and developed. We have many big jobs to do at home in these unpredictable times. And the biggest of these jobs is to see that the light of freedom, which has been extinguished in so much of the world, is kept burning here undimmed.

TWISTING THE WAR ABOUT

The fleeting shadow of the Soviet-Finnish war is sweeping across some instances which may mean little or much. If the huge Russian war machine succeeds in breaking down the resistance of the Finns quickly the underlying currents will probably not develop, but the longer that machine stalls and sputters in front of an inspired band of fighting Finns, world-wide possibilities stand good show of being hatched.

The first surprising news that drifted out of Finland was the hint that England and France were aiding that country with planes and ammunitions. Then came word that Germany had been supplying the Finns with war materials which were being turned upon the erstwhile allies of Germany, the Communists. Finally the news arrived that a squadron of Italian planes have flown across Germany to Finland and had quickly been sent into combat against the invaders.

What does all this mean? As we said in the beginning it may mean little, or it may mean much. What is more, if the Finns are able to keep of their strong resistance the attack of Stalin upon Finland may yet develop into a holy war. It would not be impossible for the Pope to align the Christian nations of Europe together to crush the power of the Soviet.

There are two or three obstacles to the culmination of such an alliance of Christian powers to beat back the Soviet. First is the big conundrum of, What about Germany? Is there any way in which Germany, now at battle grips with France and England and bound by a mutual assistance pact with Russia, could bring such an about face? On the face of the things it looks hardly probable these two sets of enemies could patch up their differences to unite with Italy, Finland and Rumania against Russia. Yet a few ticks of the clock might have wiped out this difficulty almost instantly. Had the time bomb in that brewery cellar exploded eleven minutes earlier the one point of difference between England, France and Germany would have been removed forever. This war has been waged in the most uninspired fashion, and with Hitler taken out of the picture it is certain affairs in Europe would quickly be patched up. How could Hitler be removed from the picture? Well, the army has never been thoroughly sold of Der Fuhrer, and the army has the power to run Germany if the generals should suddenly make up their minds to do so. Another thing, Germany is largely a Catholic country. Christians of every faith are certainly looking askance to this alliance Hitler made with Stalin. It would not be surprising if the Pope had enough influence with the Catholics in Germany to cause them to unite and unseat the dictator.

There are a number of major puzzle scraps which would need fitting together before we could see Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Rumania and Finland united in a holy war against Russia. In the first place the British would be determined that Poland be reconstructed, and if they are entirely honest no deal could be made without giving the Czechs a measure of freedom. Both these moves would be sharply counter to German aspirations. What could settle the differences?

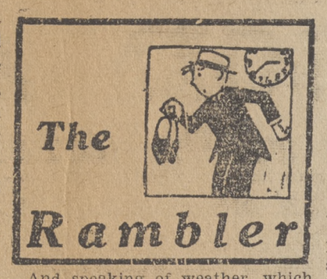
One possibility would be a compromise that would promise Germany a big chunk of the rich Russian Ukraine, towards which she has cast longing eyes for decades. If Germany were promised that, relieved of the need of a bitter war on the west and given back some of her colonial possessions Germany would almost certainly be willing to do another about-face with Russia. Indeed Germany might be glad to take a corridor across the south of Poland to the Russian agricultural lands and re-establish Poland as a buffer between the Soviet and herself. Hitler himself, might even make a deal with France and Britain to join Italy in such a venture. Russian troops have failed to show much fighting ability in Finland and this strange coalition may yet develop against the grasping Stalin.

LOOK AROUND YOU

For several months American eyes have been fixed on warring Europe. That is natural, but we must not forget that pressing as international problems may be, domestic problems cannot be overlooked.

The Federal debt still rises dangerously in spite of exorbitant taxes. The need for equitable labor legislation becomes more urgent. And the radical philosophy, which seeks to destroy private business, is active as ever.

It is the duty of Congress to make us secure from invasion. It is likewise the duty of Congress to make us secure from the far more imminent perils that exist within our own borders. We need to do more looking at our own United States and less at nations three thousand miles away.



And speaking of weather, which everyone was Monday, the fog was so thick Sunday afternoon and night that farmers in the vicinity were cutting it up in chunks and putting it in their ice houses. I expected to see some skiing on it it was so thick. And I also expected to hear of many accidents Monday morning.

We again reverted to the near primitive with tallow candles and oil lamps for a couple hours Sunday, and personally I liked it, even tho the electric clock stopped, the refrigerator defrosted, the electric percolator refused to percolate and kindred things became useless. I like to eat by candle light. But I often wonder why some auxiliary power cannot be supplied Addison to take care of such emergencies, for I have never been in a place where the power goes off so often as it does here.

Parents—Take precautions with your children especially the younger ones at this time of year. There is whooping cough about and it is really a serious matter with children.

I most certainly would not like to be the Senior Class faculty advisor in Addison High School at any time. That seems to me to be the busiest job in school, maybe excepting the janitors. With all the fund raising there, with the promotion and direction of shows, with food and bake sales and many other activities. I can understand how that teacher must take a lot of abuse from other teachers and parents. And then after one class has all graduated, the whole darn thing to do over again.

Calling your attention to the Christmas advertisements in the paper this week and asking your support for those merchants.

It hardly seems possible that Christmas is so near. This is partly due to the lack of snow, I guess, for Christmas does not seem complete without snow.

Owing to the number of advertisements this week much news has been left out, so we ask your indulgence. Several stories were cut to a mention, stories which deserved much space, which we could not give. Our sincere apologies to those who spent time preparing material which was not used. LOOKING FORWARD

President Roosevelt, it seems to us, deserves a great deal of credit for the self-restraint and prudence which he has obselved in recent weeks in regard to foreign affairs. Indeed, his behavior has been quite comforting to those who believe that under no circumstances, short of invasion, should the United States become involved in the European war.

Mr. Roosevelt's attitude in this regard during the last two months has been so different from his actions during September and previously that the change deserves much more comment than it has received. Most commentators have held back, we suppose, for fear that he might suddenly change back to the former direction before their words could be printed. Indeed, it is a risk we are now running.

Became War-Minded in 1937

It will be recalled that ever since the President delivered the so-called "quarantine" speech at Chicago in October 1937 he gave evidence of being distinctly warminded. In that address Mr. Roosevelt reversed the stand he had taken in the so-called "I-hate-war" speech at Chautauqua in August 1936. At Chicago he embraced the idea that the United States had some kind of obligation to police the world—to put down the aggressor nations.

For almost two years to a day, Mr. Roosevelt pursued the course outlined in the Chicago speech. At every opportunity he blasted the machinations of aggressor nations. He undertook to persuade the American people that their firesides and religions were threatened. He undertook to depict the checkerboard moves of European power politics as part of a holy war and indicated that he could not stand passively aside and let civilization be destroyed. Indeed, he resurrected the old chestnut about the necessity of saving democracy in Europe.

In that two-year period Mr. Roosevelt made his famous Warm Springs declaration of last April that he would be back in the fall if "we don't have a war". He endorsed—accepted as his own — a newspaper editorial which interpreted that statement to mean that our interests were tightly bound up with those of the British and French.

Sought to Arouse War Spirit

Finally the European war came on September 1. Mr. Roosevelt became far more active in line with the "quarantine" speech than he had been previously. Obviously he undertook during the month of September to create a war spirit or atmosphere in this country. Some call it "war mongering" and in view of the things he did that term does not seem too harsh.

Hardly a day in September passed without Mr. Roosevelt taking action or uttering words which increased the nervousness of the American people. One day he warned that foreign submarines had been sighted off the coast of New England. The next day the submarines were off the coast of Florida. Another day he proclaimed the existence of a "national emergency"—he called it a "limited national emergency" but the word "limited" did not appear in the proclamation.

Orders were issued increasing the personnel of army and navy. Long conferences with army and navy chiefs were held in the White House. The newly-created War Resources Board met in continuous session. The White House announced another submarine had been sighted. This was followed by the freakish story that mysterious message indicated the American ship Iroquois might be attacked by submarines. Every day something new was announced—something disturbing.

Coudersport—Miss Rose Crane attempted to hurry a slow starting fire with gasoline. She died in the local hospital a few days later.

—o—

Avoca—Fire underwriters in charge of setting insurance rates have insisted that the village fire truck remain in the village and not respond to out-of-town calls or insurance rates will go up. Should some valuable house burn when the fire apparatus is away, "Jeeves" of the Herald say there will be "merry hob" to pay.

Meanwhile all the New Deal satellites kept up a chant that America would be in the war within a year—within six months — within ninety days. The bellicose Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, for instance, rattled sabers and heaped fuel on the war-mongering fire, driving to exasperation his more peace-minded and realistic chief, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring.

Hysterical Storm Abates

And, then, suddenly during the first week of October all of this ceased Three times in one press-conference Mr. Roosevelt emphatically asserted that this country would not become involved in the war. He ordered the War Resources Board dismantled, asserting its purpose had been served. He rapped down the belligerent Louis Johnson and ordered destroyed a series of fantastic mobilization plans that gentleman had designed.

If there have been any submarines off the American coast in the last two months the White House apparently has believed silence was the better part of valor. Nor do we hear any more—that is up to this writing—of what we shall do when we get into the war. Instead of seeking to keep the country tense over the war, the President appears to be doing what he can to promote calmness and tranquility.

What was the reason for this remarkable change? Only Mr. Roosevelt definitely knows the answer. But one answer may be that he suddenly awoke to the fact that the American people overwhelmingly are determined to stay out of the European war and that his actions were reacting against him. If this is true, then those Senators who led the fight against repeal of the arms embargo may take the credit, for they aroused public opinion and made it articulate. Historians may record a decade or two hence that they lost their battle—but they kept us out of war.

Young Farmers Lose To Aggie Basketeers

The 1939 edition of the Addison Aggies defeated the Young Farmers Club on the old gym floor Monday night by a 34-32 score in a marathon game.

The Young Farmers Club had much more ability and sizzle but they tired in the [illegible] and allowed the present day Aggies to outscore them and win the game.

The scoring opened on a basket by F. Hall. Matthews tied it up a moment later for the locals and from then on the lead changed back and forth. At the half the older boys were leading by a 22 to 17 score as Harold Martin who was high scorer for the Aggies last year continued to sink one-handed shots.

In the long second half the Aggies sparked by Jimmy Hall on offense and Matthews on defense tied the score and then went ahead to win in the closing hours of the game.

DAR Fortieth Birthday Party Held Dec. 7

The fortieth anniversary of the founding of Onwentsia Chapter D. A. R., was observed in a fitting manner Thursday at the home of Mrs. Charles L. Crane, Steuben St.

Decorations carrying out the Yule-tide theme were used through out the home. A buffet luncheon was served, the table being spread with a lace cloth and attractively centered with evergreens, bittersweet and red tapers in crystal holders. A feature of the luncheon was a white iced four-tiered birthday cake bearing forty red candles. A complete file of the Calendars for the past forty years was on display as well as interesting relics belonging to the charter members.

Before the serving of the luncheon the Daughters repeated the American's Creed in unison and were led in the salute to the flag by Mrs. A. B. Chatfield. Following the singing of the "Star Sangled Banner", Mrs. Carrie Saxton, chaplain of Onwentsia Chapter offered prayer.

After the luncheon the group joined in singing "Friendliness" and "Auld Lang Syne". A welcome was extended by Regent Mrs. Winfield Long. Greetings were heard from Mrs. Edwin C. Smith, Jr., Bath, in behalf of Baron Steuben Chapter; Mrs. James L. Sebring, regent and Mrs. Oscar Rothfuss, past regent of Corning Chapter; Mrs. Archie Blades, regent and Miss Suire, both of Kanisteo Valley Chapter, Hornell.

Congratulatory letters were read from Mrs. William H. Clapp of Cohocton, former State Regent and Miss Edmunds of Avoca, a member of Conhocton Chapter. Letters were also read from two Onwentsia Chapter charter members, Mrs. Elizabeth Taber, an invalid and Miss Jessica K. Turner, who is in St. Petersburg for the winter.

Mrs .D. H. Orr, a charter member spoke on the subject, "Our Yesterdays", telling of the founding of the Chapter and of the activities of the early days. Mrs. Long who is serving as regent for the third time talked on "Our Todays" and Mrs. Fred C. Farnham took as her topic "Our Tomorrows", speaking on the possible reactions of members forty years hence, touching on both the serious and humorous aspects.

Violin solos by Hubert Dininny and vocal solos by Mrs. Irving Gladstone, each accompanied by Miss Janet Taylor, were well received.

Others present in addition to those already mentioned were Mrs. Stafford Whitmore, Bath; Mrs. Charles Hubbs, Hammondsport; Mrs. Prudence Crane and Mrs. Charles J. Coon, former members; and the following Daughters: Mrs. Clarence Reilly, Mrs. Edwin C. Smith, Sr., Mrs. George Freeman, Mrs. Maple Woodhouse, Mrs. Ray S. Brown, Mrs. William E. Barron, Mrs. Fred C. Young Farmers Seek Higher Education Here

Twenty-five young farmers of Addison and vicinity attended the organization meeting of the Young Farmers Club for this school year, which was held in the agriculture room of the Addison High School Monday evening.

The meeting was opened by last year's president, James Walker of Hedgesville. It has been the custom not to have the president succeed himself so nominations were open for the new president. Joseph Coleman was nominated and elected president for the coming year. Harold Martin of Borden was named as secretary. It was decided that meetings would be held the same as in past years.

Following the election of officers Mr. Finnerty gave a short talk on the farm inventory. Books put out by a commercial firm were passed out. These books provide places for taking a farm inventory and making a credit statement, which is often required in borrowing money for farm purposes. These books also provide for a daily record of farm income and expenses.

The main discussion of the evening was given over to the problem of computing feed rations for dairy cows. The new and simple method of computing rations was explained. Material showing how this method is used was distributed and discussed. At the end of the discussion on feeds a short period was given over to questions and answers.

LIBERTY POLE

This community was saddened by the death of Julian Soule who passed away Monday night after a long illness. The family has the sympathy of the neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, Sr., and children Trilba and Malcolm and Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Jones were recent dinner guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Jones of Monroeton Pa.

Mr. anl Mrs. Lawrence Button and children Lee and Alegra were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones Sr. In the afternoon Mrs. Jones accompanied them to Wellsville where they called on Mrs. Edna Button.

Bernard Baker and Ivan Jones got a six point buck during deer season just closed.

Many of the farmers in this vicinity are having lime hauled to their farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Long of Williamsport, called on Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Jones Sunday evening.

This Week In Sports

Al Simmons is returning to the Philadelphia Athletics after seven years absence. It was under Connie Mack that he made his greatest claim to fame.

—o—

Max Bishop was a baseball star with the Phillies. Yet he heartily disliked the game and tried to have his contract fixed so that he would not have to play in exhibition games. That sounds like one for the books.

—o—

The University of Pennsylvania started rowing in 1854 and this is the oldest sport in which the college now participates.

—o—

All-American football players are usually that way because of their outstanding ability on the gridiron, but they also have something else which makes them outstanding. Lyle Kinnick, Iowa's All-American gave his All-American sweater to Edwin Collins, a high school lad who lost his leg in Newark playing football and is now confined in a hospital. Imagine that lad's joy.

—o—

Intercollegiate rowing coaches met in New York Saturday and planned a national rowing meet at Princeton. This should be an event worth seeing with the best of all crews pitted against each other instead of the select seven at Poughkeepsie late in June.

—o—

Canadian football is faster than American football and also much more tricky according to one of the coaches there. He is a graduate of a U. S. college and former all-star player. He claims that plays that are being applauded from coast to coast this season are routine for Canadian teams. I expect some answers will be made to his charge.

—o—

The New Orleans sugar bowl is already sold out. Tulane and Texas A & M will play before over 70,000 fans. The game is January 1. The 39 men who had the headache of underwriting the thing are now breathing easier.

—o—

The first home game of the season for the Knights will be played here Friday night with one of the toughest games on the schedule in view. Corning Northside comes here for a contest. The visitors have many veterans in their lineup and promises to give Coach Bill Miller's charges a real game. The Addisonites won from Elkland and have been practicing hard in preparation for the Friday game, which they feel will be an experience game for both teams, as it is a non-league game.

—o—

The Amateur Athletic Union of the United States plans a track meet here next fall if Finland cancels the Olympics, which seems a foregone conclusion unless the war over there ends pretty soon.

—o—

The professional Detroit Lions football team is for sale. G. A. Richards, owner, is in ill health and has been warned to give up the responsibility of the team.

—o—

Dr. "Eddie" Anderson, Iowa coach, has been called the outstanding coach of the year in collegiate circles in taking a seventh place Iowa team of last year and putting them in second place in the Big Ten and with the same personnel. He received the Jacob Ruppert Memorial Award. Dr. Anderson was formerly at Holy Cross.

—o—

The universal hold football has on American colleges can be best illustrated by the fact that Yale spent $489,000 on it altogether and Black Mountain College in North Carolina spent $12.80 and had just as much fun.

—o—

Dallas is preparing its cotton bowl for a game between Clemson of South Carolina and Boston College. For those fans who think the football referee does not know what is going on, Bill Crowley, veteran arbiter states that 90 per cent of all rule infractions are seen.

—o—

The meeting of the major and minor league baseball moguls in Cincinnati last week sure gave some people headaches and brought to light the fact that American League teams are trying to curb the power of the Yankees and were successful in some factors.

—o—

It begins to look as tho there will be no semi-professional or even amateur basketball here, outside of high school this year. Many of the veterans, who in former years have organized a village team, have either gone away or retired from the game. And it begins to look as though local fans wishing to see pro ball will have to go to Elmira.

Perry—The Rev. Lawrence Seeley wrecked his car and decided to get along until spring without one. However, one morning a stranger knocked at his door and gave him the bill of sale for a new car at the curb and neither stranger or parson knows the donor.

—o—

Penn Yan—William M. Wood, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wood, was suffocated in his crib while sleeping.

4-H CLUB NEWS

4-H potato club members of Steuben County, in particular, and western New York Counties, in general, are putting up for market U. S. Fancy potatoes in 10 lb. paper bags bearing the Empire State Blue Seal as well as the 4-H Club Emblem . These potatoes are officially inspected by a produce inspector of the Department of Agriculture & Markets and must have less than 4% defective potatoes per lot to pass. These potatoes, carefully graded, brushed, weighed and bagged are said to be the only Fancy potatoes put up in New York State.

Steuben County 4-H'ers mainly in the vicinity of Cohocton and Arkport are the first in New York State to cooperatively sell potatoes, so trade marked, on any scale at all although a few hundred bags have been sold throughout New York State during the past two or three years. Over 1700 bags have been sold at premium prices by 4-H boys during the past week and many more are in the process of being prepared, although the demand which these first shipments have created is much greater than can be supplied by the Steuben County 4-H potato members alone in this first year of 4-H Club work in the county. It is expected that many more members will be growing high quality potatoes next year and will sell them in this manner .

The second of two training schools for 4-H Club homemaking leaders on the unit "Successful Dresses" school in this unit could gain maber 14 at 10:30 in the homemaking rooms of the Bath High School. Miss Muriel Brasie, specialist in clothing from the College of Home Economics at Cornell will be in charge. All leaders whose girls are planning on this unit should be sure to attend. New leaders who may have missed the first terially by attending this second meeting if their girls are planning on the work.

Farmers Order Ten Thousand Tons Lime

With orders for eleven thousand one hundred twenty tons of limestone on the books, Steuben farmers are receiving this month the largest shipment of limestone ever to come into the county. At forty tons to the car, this shipment involves three hundred carloads, or at the rate of ten cars daily for the current month.

The orders, first to be taken under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program, were solicited in a sign up period of recent weeks.

A similar sign up period in early September netted orders for twelve thousand one hundred ninety seven tons, which makes the total of the lime ordered by Steuben cooperators in the Agricultural Conservation Program at more than twenty three thousand three hundred tons.

Until December 15 orders will be accepted at county headquarters in the Farmers' & Mechanics' Bank building, Bath and at the soil clinics to be conducted by the farm bureau this week and next.

Greenwood Defeats Woodhull High

Fighting to the final whistle the Woodhull High School basketball quint went down to a 21-18 defeat at the hands of a shifty Greenwood squad last Friday night. It was the first league game of the season.

The score throughout the first three quarters was very uncertain with both teams keeping the scorer busy. Woodhull led by one or two points until the last quarter when Greenwood went into the lead.

The margin of victory seemed to lay in foul shots. Woodhull missing 12 out of 12 foul shots. At various points in the game the local team surpassed Greenwood's play, but just couldn't "hit on all four" for any length of time.

Woodhull's scoring pickup was Sam Marts, scoring eight points.

Christmas Lights Are Turned on Main Street

The Christmas lights are most all up on Main Street and several strings are being lighted nightly. It sure makes a big difference in the appearance of the street. Those who conceived the idea and donated towards its fulfillment are to be congratulated. As one man said, "I have been here 57 years and Main Street looked better on Saturday than any holiday time in all those years." Yes, sir, we are proud of our Main Street now.

Now maybe some organization will gather laurel or evergreens of some sort and complete the Christmas appearance of the lights.

WHO GETS BARGAINS?

When a real bargain appears several people may seek it. Who gets it? Usually the one with the most ready cash. This is one reason why the prudent man ALWAYS maintains an ample CHECKING ACCOUNT BALANCE and sees to it that it is large enough at all times to take advantage of buying opportunities.

A Sizable Checking Account Balance Will MAKE You Money.
